The GAME and the CANDLE

A book of golden deeds, of love that keeps faith through trial, and of allegiance steadfast in the midst of fiery adventure.

Starry with chivalry, dazzling with love, surprising at every turn of fortune, THE GAME AND THE CANDLE is a very jewel of romantic fiction.

Pictures by P. D. JOHNSON. Jacket in full color and gold cloth. 12mo, $1.50

By MARIA THOMPSON DAVIESS

MISS SELINA LUE

And the Soap-Box Babies

You just can't resist Miss Selina Lue. Spinster, store-keeper, and general neighborhood manager, she is a very real and delightfully funny character. She plays the part of Providence in all the comedies and tragedies of the Bluff. Her specialty is a row of soap boxes in which she keeps a free day nursery; and the pages are running over with children, always in comical trouble.

Pictures by PAUL J. MEYLAN. Jacket in full color and gold. 12mo, cloth, $1.00

By HERBERT QUICK

Author of "Double Trouble," "The Broken Lance"

VIRGINIA of the AIR LANES

Herbert Quick has seized a romantic moment for the airship novel. He has done a big thing. He has realized to our imaginations the navigation of the airy space, with a matter-of-factness that makes it utterly plausible, and with an audacity that makes one dizzy in the new and awful altitudes.

Delicious humor permeates the whole book; the romance of young love colors it all; and the wings of bright imagination lift it into regions of pure delight. By all odds Mr. Quick's best book.

THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY, Publishers, INDIANAPOLIS

The Intimate Story of a Human Life

THE JOURNAL OF A RECLUSE

TRANSLATED FROM THE ORIGINAL FRENCH

With Frontispiece, $1.25 net. (Postage 12 cents)

THIS Book is sent forth without the name of either author or translator.

Some reason for this is given in the Preface, which at once whets the appetite for the narrative which follows. It is an intensely vital, self-revealing document—one in which the writer, like Rousseau or Amiel, seeks to tell the whole truth about himself, sparing nothing, condoning nothing. In an easy, smooth-flowing style, and through the medium of a story which at times grows highly dramatic, the man lays bare the secrets of his soul. "The whole man in his simplicity and earnestness appears in this book," says the translator. "But we shall let him speak for himself. He knows better how to do it, than we."

THE CONQUEST OF THE AIR

The Advent of Aerial Navigation

By A. LAWRENCE ROTCH

Professor in Harvard University and Director of the Blue Hill Meteorological Observatory

It is THE BOOK OF THE MOMENT, and will amply repay just a little earnest work on your part to start it. It tells the whole story of the balloon and the aeroplane in its scientific aspects and in unscientific language.

We Shall Have Ready

THE FLORENTINE FRAME

By ELIZABETH ROBINS

Do not forget that this is one of the biggest and soundest novels of American life and society that you have had for several years, and that it is the kind of novel that often runs very big. It involves a love and marriage problem of quite a new kind—and it ends right.

READY THIS WEEK

A Most Useful and Attractive Work

Old Time Recipes for Home Made Wines

Cordials and Liqueurs from Fruits, Flowers, Vegetables, etc.

Compiled by HELEN S. WRIGHT.

This work will, we are assured, appeal to many. In compact but attractive form it combines a list of valuable recipes, and a beautiful and artistic gift book. The compiler has been most thorough, introducing us to a wonderful variety of rare and treasured old formulas for the preparation of a great variety of home-made wines and liqueurs, over whose wealth of color and delicacy of flavor the eyes and palates of bygone generations of our country and gentlefolk delighted to linger. The volume is decorated by beautiful marginal drawings by A. J. IORIO.

Cloth, 12mo, Gilt Top, $1.50

N. B.—These recipes are all of undoubted authenticity, having stood the test of long and wide use. The only modification, in any case, made at the present printing; being in the reducing of the quantities to suit the scope and limitations of modern housekeeping.

FOUR BEST BOOKS FOR BOYS

The Football Boys of Lakeport; or, More Goals Than One

By EDWARD STRATEMEYER. Fourth Volume of the "Lakeport Series." Illustrated. $1.25

Football is one of the most popular sports of this country, and in this tale Mr. Stratemeyer has shown what the jolly and dauntless boys of Lakeport did when the football season came around.

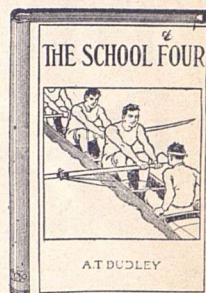

How the quarter-back of the eleven helped his rival of the gridiron to get away from his enemies and reach the field in time, and then defeated him, is told in a fashion that all boys will appreciate.

The School Four

By A. T. DUDLEY. First Volume of "Stories of the Triangular League." Illustrated. $1.25

The events of the story centre in the Westcott School, one of three which have formed a new league. The leading forms of athletics, including rowing, figure in the gaining of points towards a championship cup, and the rivalry is most intense.

At Westcott's, the crowning student honor is the captaincy of the school four. Football is no less prominent in the progress of the story than rowing, and both general school life and competitive relations with other schools are set forth to the life.

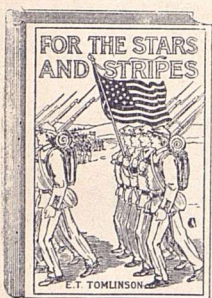

For the Stars and Stripes

By EVERETT T. TOMLINSON. First Volume of "War for the Union Series." Illustrated. $1.50

This story is based on true happenings, and the thread of it is the escape of a young Union soldier from a Southern prison. Graphically told incidents, true to fact, crowd each other.

There are guerillas, prisons, campaigns, negroes, friends and enemies, loyal men and others, all parts of the tale. Above all, the book is interesting as well as intrinsically valuable, and the keynote to the series will be loyalty to a re-united country, in which sentiment those of all sections can heartily join.

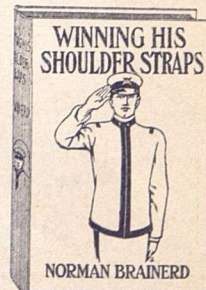

Winning His Shoulder Straps

Or, Bob Anderson at Chatham Military School

By NORMAN BRAINERD. First Volume of "Five Chums Series." Illustrated. $1.25

A rousing story of life in a military school by one who thoroughly knows all the features of such a school, with so much in its life that is so entirely different from the ordinary boarding school.

The dearest honor to a student is to become an officer, and Bob has no easy road to the coveted distinction. Athletics are plentifully featured, and every boy, good, bad, and indifferent, is a natural fellow, who talks and acts like a bright, up-to-date lad in real life.

THE NEW OPPENHEIM NOVEL Jeanne of the Marshes

By

OPPENHEIM

Author of

"The Governors,"

"The Missioner,"

Etc.

Drawn by J. V. McFall, in color, for "Jeanne of the Marshes"

An engrossing story of love and adventure which grips the attention of the reader at the start. Endless complications, and events and scenes of the most exciting character, lead up to a satisfactory climax, in which a subterranean tunnel leading to the sea has an important part. Emphatically a good story, full of action and color.

OCTOBER FICTION

The Shadow Between His Shoulder Blades

Ready October 16

Joel Chandler Harris, Illustrated by George Harding. 90c. net; post. 10c.

A fine example of the beloved creator of "Uncle Remus" as the teller of a Civil War tale. The story relates how Billy Sanders and his friend Wimberly Driscoll rode out to join General Forrest, and how they crossed the trail of a spy. The love interests is vivid and the story leads up to a dramatic climax. Throughout the reader feels the force of the author's salient power of description, his characteristic humor and his fine sincerity.

Marie of Arcady

Ready October 16

F. Hewes Lancaster

With Frontispiece by Rose O'Neill. $1.25

The scene of this story of to-day is a settlement in the basin of a bayou along the lower Mississippi, remote from the world and from the century. Here dwell the 'Cajan people, who are the descendants of the exiles of the Evangeline legend. The story in its sweetness and human appeal is filled with the idyllic charm of its setting; but it is not without its dramatic quality, and this is all the more powerful because it is unsuspected by the reader. The story with its quaintness contains many a smile and produces many a lump in the throat, and it leaves the reader with that "Dickensy" feeling we all love so well of "God bless us every one." An ideal Christmas book.

Old Clinkers A Story of the New York Fire Department

Ready October 23

Harvey J. O'Higgins, Author of "The Smoke Eaters," etc. Illustrated by Martin Justice. $1.25

A book of the greatest public interest. Captain Keighley of the fireboat Hudson, nicknamed "Old Clinkers," is a fine figure of a man. When he finds the politicians insidiously at work among his crew, he fights them in silence by fighting some dangerous fires in a way that sets the blood to dancing and the nerves a-tingle. So long as brave deeds of self-sacrifice thrill the hearts of men, books like "Old Clinkers" will continue to be read.

The Chronicles of Rhoda

Florence Tinsley Cox Illustrated in full color by Jessie Willcox Smith. $1.25

Here is a charming book which belongs to that ever delightful class of "stories about children for grown-ups" of which "Emmy Lou" and "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm" are examples. When we first become acquainted with Rhoda as the "de-throned queen" who discovers that suddenly her favored place of "baby" has been pre-empted, we find her three years old; when we leave her, she is seven. The world and the family we learn to see and to know through her eyes; and those of us who can still recall the misunderstandings, the hopes, the wounded vanities, the unconscious humors of childhood, will recognize the perfect fidelity of the viewpoint and applaud the writer's skill. A book that is certain to be a popular Christmas book.

A Knight of the Wilderness

A stirring novel of the open

By OLIVER MARBLE GALE and HARRIET WHEELER

This is not an historical novel, but among the strong characters in the book Abraham Lincoln and Jefferson Davis figure conspicuously. There is a heart-gripping love story, set against a background of thrilling adventures, in which is woven skillfully the bigness, the freshness, the vigor and the spiritual and physical courage of that early period when the middle West was the common meeting-ground of the first white settlers and the Indian warriors of Chief Black Hawk. The story has a forceful swing, like a crisp, sweet breeze from pine forests and carries the reader with well-sustained interest through chapter after chapter to a cleverly worked out denouement.

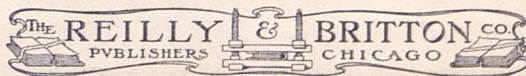

Mortimer Randolph, of Virginia, is portrayed as possessing a character and soul that make him in very truth "A Knight"—worthy to stand with those of King Arthur's table round.

LIBERAL DISCOUNT TO THE TRADE

PUBLISHERS FREDERICK A. STOKES COMPANY NEW YORK

ReadyOctober 9.

Kate Douglas Wiggin has sounded a new note in her latest story, "Susanna and Sue." From her full and sympathetic knowledge of the life and customs of the Shakers, she has portrayed these quaint people as few other writers could do; and against this drab background her two leading characters, Susanna and Sue, stand out with all the more brilliant contrast.

The story itself has to do with the disillusionment of married life, and with the obligations and duties which cannot be escaped. The captivating personality of little Sue will at once place her among the most delightful of Mrs. Wiggin's immortal children, to be remembered with Rebecca, who was, according to Thomas Bailey Aldrich, "the nicest child in American literature."

"Susanna and Sue" makes a genuine appeal to the heart of every reader.

The volume has four charming full-page illustrations in color by Alice Barber Stephens, besides twelve pen-and-ink sketches by N. C. Wyeth and marginal decorations.

Price, $1.50 net.Postpaid, $1.65.

NOTES IN SEASON.

DANA ESTES & Co. publish this week a volume of "Old Time Recipes for Home-Made Wines," compiled by Helen S. Wright, with illustrations by A. J. Iorio.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will publish on October 16 Thomas Nelson Page's splendid story, "John Marvel, Assistant," dealing with the life of to-day in the North and South. The story has attracted considerable attention during its publication as a serial in Scribner's Magazine, as the author deals fearlessly with some of our much-disputed problems.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. will bring out on October 5 a new book by Rudyard Kipling, entitled "Actions and Reactions." This, the first volume since he issued "Traffics and Discoveries," in 1904, contains eight of Mr. Kipling's stories—"An Habitation Enforced," "A Deal in Cotton," "With the Night Mail," "The House Surgeon," "Little Foxes," "The Puzzler," "Garm—a Hostage," and "The Mother Hive." The book will have a number of illustrations. They will publish at the same time Dr. W. S. Rainsford's book of hunting and adventures in Africa, entitled "Land of the Lion," with a number of illustrations from photographs; "Putting on the Screws," a story, by Gouverneur Morris, telling of a plain business man, struggling along to make ends meet for his family, but never showing the strain or losing his sense of human sympathy; "In the Border Country," by Josephine Daskam Bacon, who conveys a reassuring and uplifting message to harassed womankind in the three fairy tales that make up this volume; "The Poetry of Nature," a selection of verse true to the facts of nature, edited by Henry Van Dyke; also, a volume entitled "Piano Questions Answered," by Josef Hoffmann, who answers 250 questions covering the points which the average piano student wants to know.

A. C. McCLURG & Co. have just ready a detective story by Charles E. Walk, entitled "The Yellow Circle." The scene opens with a fashionable wedding in a fashionable church; the auditorium is filled with guests, and at the moment the ceremony begins a strange man forces his way through the attendants, thrusts a bracelet into the bride's hand, whispers something into her ear, and hastily disappears. For a moment the bride is horror-stricken, then she picks up her train and flees in a panic of terror. That is the last seen of her—until the last chapter. The action covers a period of only four days. The mystery stimulates interest to the end. They have also just brought out seven novelties for the holiday season, entitled "The Up-to-Date Sandwich Book," by Eva Green Fuller, describing 420 ways to make a sandwich; "Dame Curtsey's Book of Recipes" and "Dame Curtsey's Book of Etiquette," both by Ellye Howell Glover; "Toasts and Table Sentiments," compiled by Wallace Rice; "Catchwords of Worldly Wisdom," a little book of epigrams; "The Rubáiyát of Omar Khayyám," also, "My Chums in Caricature," a series of quotations, with blank spaces for securing the autographs of friends and pasting in caricatures taken from comic sources. These booklets are attractively printed and bound and each will make a suitable present for any season.

Stanislaus Poniatowski, the last King of Poland, has always been painted in the blackest of colors. Mr. Bain thinks that the subject of his book has not been treated fairly and that the fabulously wealthy Magnates, each one of them really an independent king in his own province, and of far more importance both in and out of the state than Stanislaus, ruined their country in spite of their sovereign and caused the disappearance of the Polish State from the map of Europe. Index.

Barbour, Ralph H: Captain Chub; with il. by C. M. Relyea. N. Y., Century Co., 1909. c. '08. 413 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The three cheerful boys and the attractive girl "Harry," who figured in "The crimson sweater," "Tom, Dick and Harriet" and "Harry's Island," have an exciting summer on the Hudson. The boys rent a houseboat, and with Harry and her father as guests cruise up and down the river, stopping when they please. Dances at big hotels, fishing and unexpected storekeeping are among their amusements. When gypsies rob the store they are tending during the absence of the quaint little woman who keeps it, the four friends are mixed up in unpleasant complications. But, of course, everything is explained and the holiday ends happily. The book is delightfully humorous.

Battell, Jos. The new physics; sound. Middlebury, Vt., American Publishing Co., 1909. c. 16+274+47 p. figs. O. cl., $1.25.

This volume is condensed from the author's "Ellen; or, the whispering of an old pine." According to Mr. Battell the undulatory theory of sound is wrong, the correct explanation being that sound is corpuscular, being composed of infinitesimal particles of electrical matter which are produced by shock or friction in the body struck. Sound includes the principle of motion, which causes vibration by which sound is more or less gradually thrown into the air and makes its way through the ears to the auditory nerves.

Sir Henry Blake spent six years as governor of Hong Kong, which gave him unusual opportunities to study and know China and the Chinese. He here describes briefly the country, history, soldiers, family life, customs, occupations and recreations of the people, while Mr. Menpes's pictures in color and black and white bring the whole clearly before the reader.

Botsford, G: Willis. The Roman assemblies, from their origin to the end of the Republic. N. Y., Macmillan, 1909. c. 10+521 p. O. cl., $4 net.

The professor of history of Columbia University offers in monographic form a detailed treatment of the popular assemblies of ancient Rome. Recent progress in this field which has involved a certain reaction against the theories of Niebuhr and Mommsen justify a systematic presentation of existing knowledge of the subject to date. The primary object, however, is not to defend a point of view, but to furnish a book of study and reference for those who are interested in the history, law and constitution of ancient Rome, and in comparative institutional research. All the modern authorities have been utilized. Bibliography (19 p.).

Boyles, Kate and Virgil D. The homesteaders; with 4 il. in full color by Maynard Dixon. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1909. c. 346 p. O. cl., $1.50.

The homesteaders were brother and sister who had recently migrated from an easy, cultivated life on the Southern Atlantic seaboard to the wonderful hill region lying west of the Missouri River. The man met with hostile cattlemen and with one especial rascal who stole from his herds, and planned many acts of villainy. One good neighbor and a noble halfbreed Indian girl stand by the homesteaders and the brave young Southerners finally get the better of the would-be despoilers of their home. By the authors of "Langford of the 3 bars."

Briggs, C: A.; D.D. Church unity: studies of its most important problems. N. Y., Scribner, 1909. c. 12+459 p. O. cl., $2.50 net.

For twenty-five years Dr. Briggs has labored to solve the hard problems of Christian unity and to reconcile the various parties in the controversies which distract Christendom. In making the book a large number of his lectures and articles in magazines have been used, but about half the material is new and deals chiefly with the most difficult questions: Infallibility, the Sacramental System, and the Validity of Orders. Dr. Briggs has conversed with many of the ablest theologians and chief dignitaries of the several Christian churches. He dedicates his book to the late Dr. William Reed Huntington, of Grace Church, New York City, who was the chief exponent of Church Unity in America.

Calderon de la Barca, Pedro. La vida es sueño; comedia famosa de D. Pedro Calderon de la Barca, 1636; ed. by Milton A. Buchanan. v. 1. Toronto, Canada, University of Toronto Library, 1909. 135 p. Q. cl. (Add. University for price.)

Editor is lecturer in Italian and Spanish in the University of Toronto, Canada. Pedro Calderon de la Barca was born in Madrid in 1600 and died in 1681. During his long life he wrote more than a hundred dramas, as well as many religious plays. He was attached to the court of Phillip IV., who was his patron, fought in the campaign of 1640, and finally entered a religious order, becoming chaplain of honor to the king and head of the Congregation of St. Peter. "La vida es sueño" (Life is a dream) was first published in 1636.

The parts of Catlin's famous book about the North American Indians which will be of most interest to boys have been condensed and brought together in chronological order. The author spent years travelling among and studying the Crows, Blackfeet, Assiniboines, Ojibbeways and other tribes of the Northwest and prairies. He learned to know them intimately, both in peace and war, recording with pen and brush what he saw.

Caw, Ja. Lewis. Scottish painting, past and present, 1620-1908. N. Y., Frederick A. Stokes Co., [1909.] 11+503 p. pls. Q. cl., $8 net.

Scottish painting earlier than 1620 is so shrouded in obscurity that the author has not touched upon it in this work. No examples are in existence and tradition only gives color to the belief that art flourished to some extent in Scotland before this period. Present volume gives short biographical accounts of Scotch artists from 1620-1908, with some critical comments on their work. Numerous reproductions from their pictures illustrate the book. Index.

Confucius. The sayings of Confucius; tr. by Leonard A. Lyall. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1909. 14+126 p. O. cl., $1.25 net.

The Chinese themselves believe that this book of the "Master's sayings" was written by disciples of Confucius. The chief authority for the text as it stands to-day is a manuscript found in the house of Confucius in B.C. 150, probably hidden there between the years B.C. 213 and 211. It seems most probable that the book was put together by pupils and disciples of Confucius from words and notebooks of their masters about B.C. 400. Language so smooth is the result of years of rounding and polishing. Index.

Cox, Florence Tinsley. The chronicles of Rhoda; il. [in col.] by Jessie Wilcox Smith. Bost., Small, Maynard & Co., [1909.] c. 287 p. D. cl., †$1.25.

This book tells the story of little Rhoda and her experiences, the people she loved and things she did. It is a pretty child story leading up to the discovery of Rhoda's deception in writing compositions for each one of her classmates—and the final discovery of this hidden talent.

The author of "The suppression of the African slave trade" is professor of sociology at Atlanta University, adopts as viewpoint for another biography of John Brown the vastly important inner development of the Negro American and shows how this resolute man worked with them, knew their faults and virtues and felt the bitter tragedy of their lot. A chronology of his great work occupies 3 pages and a bibliography 4 pages. It is fully 50 years since John Brown died to help the negro to his rights as a man, and he might still say as he did then: "the end of the negro problem is not yet."

Mr. Gibson gives the account of the evolution of modern manufacture and a readable description, with many illustrations and diagrams, of the many processes of the principal industries of to-day, such as spinning, weaving, machine, shoe and paper making, shipbuilding, and others.

Gilman, Bradley, D.D. A son of the desert; with il. by Thornton Oakley. N. Y., Century Co., 1909. c. '08. 363 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

A story for boys and girls to teach them the wonders of Egypt. The descriptions of customs, language, and localities are drawn from the author's own observations and experiences. The hero is the son of a Bedouin sheik, who is befriended by a young American boy travelling for his health. One adventure trails close upon another—brigands, sandstorms, explosion of dynamite, subterranean escapes—and in an interesting way young people may learn of the country of the sphinx and the pyramids.

Godfrey, Hollis. For the Norton name; il. by T: Fogarty. Bost., Little, Brown & Co., [1909.] c. 10+238 p. D. (Young captains of industry.) cl., †$1.25.

A tale of a young man who, at his father's death, was left alone to fight the advances of the glass trust and keep the name of Norton where it had been set high by three generations' work. Through difficult trials we find him at last victorious, with his factory working full blast.

New Orleans a few years ago when the citizens rose in their might and lynch ring leaders of the Mafia concerned in the death of their chief of police, is the scene of the tale. A romance of intrigue and mystery is the outcome, introducing a high-strung Southern planter with inordinate pride of race, a cool lawyer, a keen detective and cringing Italians and others of alien race. Zoe, "a child of impulse and passion," plays a pathetic part in this story of New Orleans conditions.

Hornung, Ernest W: Mr. Justice Raffles. N. Y., Scribner, 1909. c. 313 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

A detective story turned inside out in which the sympathies of the header are all with Mr. Raffles, the Robin Hood of burglary, well known in the short story and appearing now for the first time in a novel. He makes a bargain to obtain an incriminating letter for Levy, a money lender, on condition that he release from his clutches the Garlands, father and son. When Levy repudiates his bargain, Raffles and his chum kidnap him and hold him for ransom in a lonely house by the Thames. Love, friendship and renunciation figure in the intricate windings of the plot.

Hubbard, H: Lewis. Summing it up: a treatise on economical, moral and religious conditions of the present time, showing how they have been evolved through the centuries, with suggestions as to how the mistakes can be rectified, and universal happiness and equality assured. N. Y., J. S. Ogilvie Publishing Co., 1909. c. 91 p. D. cl., 50 c.

Beginning with the period of Biblical history when Noah and his family came out of the ark, the author has endeavored to sum up the principal evolutions of humanity to the present time. Man's susceptibility to greed is traced throughout his history, but Mr. Hubbard thinks that in America our moral spirit has nourished hope for economic improvement and prevented organized disorder, and that all the world is on the eve of ultimate reform of present abuses.

Hyrst, H. W. G. Adventures in the Arctic regions; romantic incidents and perils of travel, sport, and exploration around the poles; with 16 illustrations. Phil., Lippincott, 1910, [1909.] 11-13+319 p. D. (Adventure ser.) cl., *$1.50 net.

The adventures here recorded all took place during the first sixty years of the nineteenth century, when Arctic exploration, owing to lack of knowledge, experience and modern appliances, was even more hazardous than it is now. Boys will find these true stories of daring deeds as full of thrilling incident as any work of fiction could be.

Innes, Norman. The lonely guard; front. [in col.] by J. C. Leyendecker. Phil., George W. Jacobs & Co., [1909.] 353 p. D. cl., *$1.25 net.

A story of the reign of Maria Theresa of Austria during her struggle for supremacy over Bavaria. Alan Lesly is sent to guard and occupy the Castle of Rohn, where live the Countesses Inez and Elsa, who are at enmity with the Austrians. The castle is in a lonely, little-visited spot, but becomes the focus of a daring plot of a crafty cousin of the countesses, one of whom he wishes to marry. Lesly circumvents him and after many deeds of daring wins the girl for himself.

The two volumes contain mss. of Jesuit Fathers, introductory notes to each chapter, showing the condition, hardships and trials of the Scottish Catholics during the years 1627-1712. Here these are discontinued, probably due to the suppression of the Order. Manuscripts of the Rev. John Thompson and others cover the years 1688 up to the passing of the Catholic Relief Bill in 1793. To each volume is added an appendix of legal proceedings against Scottish Catholics. Index.

Lincoln, Jonathan Thayer. The City of the Dinner-pail. Bost., Houghton Mifflin Co., 1909. c. 186 p. D. cl., $1.25 net.

The City of the Dinner-pail is Fall River, where nearly one hundred cotton factories are operated. Here, where people from nearly all nations are employed, Mr. Lincoln has spent years as a manufacturer and has studied the labor problem at close range. He thinks that the tendency to regard the toilers, not as a mass of individuals, but simply as a mass of potential labor, like a machine, has much bearing on the question of capital and labor. Contents: The City of the Dinner-pail; The average citizen and the labor problem; The man and the machine; The time clock; Trade-unionism and the individual worker; The City of Luxury.

Lincoln, Jos. Crosby. Keziah Coffin; with il. by Wallace Morgan. N. Y., Appleton, 1909. c. 387 p. D. cl., *$1.50.

The author of "Our village" and "Cy Whitaker's place" again tells a story of Cape Cod in the '50's, when all the important inhabitants of that region were captains of ships or retired captains. Keziah Coffin, a woman of forty, has a rascally husband, by most supposed to be dead. She becomes housekeeper for the new orthodox minister of the village in which the Regulars and the Covenanters are waging the relentless battles of religion of these days. These religious differences underlie the plot, from which finally emerge two happy pairs of mated lovers. The local atmosphere is given by the author at his best.

Much has been written on how to teach, but almost nothing has been published on how to study and how to teach children to study. As professor of elementary education in Teachers' College, Columbia University, the author has devoted much attention to the subject, realizing that the mere getting of knowledge is not as important to the child's mental development as the method employed in the attaining. The present volume is partly the result of reading, but largely the result of observation, experiment, and discussion with his students. Index.

Randall, J.: Herman. New philosophy of life series. 7 v. The real God; The subconscious mind; The power of suggestion; Mind and body; Man's undeveloped powers; The supreme victory; The rebirth of religion. Bost., H. M. Caldwell Co., [1909.] c. D. bds., ea., 60 c.; limp leath., ea., $1.25.

Author feels that in this day of Christian Science, New Thought, Emmanuel Movements, etc., that the truly scientific and religious principles underlying all these kindred phases of thought should be examined and clearly set forth. In this series he has endeavored to do this and bring science and religion into closer harmony.

Raynes, F. W. Domestic sanitary engineering and plumbing; dealing with domestic water supplies, pump and hydraulic ram work, hydraulics, sanitary work, heating by low pressure, hot water, and external plumbing work; with 277 illustrations. The title is made up of the affectionate nicknames given to the two heroines, one aged forty, the other twenty, between whom fluctuate the affections of a young violinist of thirty. Music is the inspiring motive of the book and a certain song is often repeated and the musical notes given throughout the book. A pair of twins, a grown boy and girl devoted to automobiles and dogs furnish the humor of the plot. Daintily printed with running title and side references in red.

Reform in life insurance taxation; insurance journals of two countries indorse conference held in New York, December 4th and 5th, 1908, and point out necessity for continued activity in this campaign for the policyholders. Rhodes, Daniel P. The philosophy of change. N. Y., Macmillan, 1909. c. 27+389 p. figs. O. cl., $2 net.

Author holds that all experience is illusory in proportion as it is of a particular character. On the other hand, the further we extend the groups of our particular experiences the more difficult does it become to discredit positive statements about them. The most comprehensive group of experience he finds in what we call change. The universe then may be expressed as the fixed order of change.

Rowland, Eleanor Harris. The right to believe. Bost., Houghton Mifflin Co., 1909. c. 15+202 p. D. cl., $1.25 net.

Author is instructor in philosophy and psychology in Mount Holyoke College. Book is an outgrowth of Miss Harris's experience with four types of honest doubters: (1) students of college grade who wish to believe in religious truth, but are troubled by necessary readjustment of old beliefs; (2) professional thinkers trained in philosophical thought and language, who may have a prejudice against the ordinary formulas of religion, but have also respect for authority; (3) business men untrained in school thinking, but having the logic of commerce, and recognizing the civic and social importance of religious institutions; (4) men who are essentially heathen,—without knowledge of creeds, respect for authority, reverence, or care for their own souls or any other man's. The conclusion of the questions and arguments is that there is a God, Christ was divine, and man has an immortal soul.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

OCTOBER 2, 1909.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

COMMON SENSE IN ADVERTISING.

HORACE H. JACKSON, whose voice is so often heard on the right side in the discussions of practical subjects brought up in the sessions of the American Booksellers' Association, has sent us some samples of his advertising campaign this summer which he would recommend to his colleagues. The first is a displayed advertisement in a favored position in one of the local papers in Bridgeport, Conn., and looks like this:

"SIGNS BRING MONEY"

Save money and make money by using a neat sign marker. Make any sort of a sign in a very few minutes. No waits. Price starts at 15c and ends wherever you say. Complete assortment at

JACKSON'S BOOK SHOP, 986-988 MAIN ST.

In the same number of the paper in which the above appeared, Mr. Jackson secured the following note next to reading matter:

POINTS OF INTEREST

"Money Makers."

An attractive window sign means money as in this progressive age people are no longer satisfied with goods displayed unless you say something about them. A neatly worded and clearly printed sign is one of the best trade getters. No excuse for not having your goods marked and properly described. Sign markers made of rubber which give clear and distinct letters can be had in any size or style. You are not confined to the color black as in using you can have your ink most any color. If you are interested in good signs for attractive windows stop at Jackson's, 986-988 Main Street and see what can be done in this line with a very little sum.

Mr. Jackson uses four Bridgeport daily papers for this kind of advertising, and changes the advertisements and reading matter notices every Monday in all the papers. There is nothing original in this. It is as easy as the trick of Columbus in making an egg stand on its head, and any one can try it. But he must remember to change the advertisement, according to Mr. Jackson, at least once a week. We should be in favor of changing it every day, using as a model, if the bookseller needs one, the striking advertisements of Rogers, Peet & Co., of New York. The announcements of this concern come with a daily message of interest to the readers of the paper in which they appear, whether or not they are concerned in their products.

It is only by startling people that an advertisement can be made to pay. Indeed, as Printer's Ink recently emphasized, "the advertiser must keep his advertising moving all the time, and put the highest amount of skill in it, or else he will lose ground." Some advertisers think they must hire a calliope to make the public aware of their existence; others use an axe. While we do not approve of extreme measures, we must confess that they serve their purpose better than the passive measures that with one "yap" subside into worse than "innocuous desuetude." We have been confronted by booksellers who thought they were enterprising, and who actually devoted a certain portion of their income to an "advertising account," with the startling announcement that while they did a certain amount of advertising in the local papers they really had very little faith in its efficacy. And they were right, because, while they backed up their faith in advertising with part of their hard-earned income, they missed their share in making their advertising effective by a thousand miles because they lacked the initiative or the knowledge to give their advertising living force. At the start they probably handed their advertising copy to the newspaper man, or, worse still, requested him to make up the copy for them. When the advertisement first appeared the bookseller was absurdly proud of seeing his name in print, and, day by day, or week by week, he made certain that it appeared in the proper place, right side up. As the years went by the bookseller's interest in his advertisement waned—the public long ago had come to regard it as part of the make up of the paper, just as it did the column rules and other furniture—and finally he took it for granted that his advertisement was running all right because quarterly he received his bill for it. But the advertising drew no more than a mustard plaster without any mustard in it might draw. And so, after a while, he grew sour on the subject of advertising, made sarcastic remarks to the "fellers" who tried to get some more out of him, etc., forgetting all the time that the fault lay entirely with him. And, for that matter, some of the blame must rest upon the advertising agent who had neither the courage nor the good sense to put his customer on the right tack in the matter. We do not hold the advertising man altogether guiltless in such cases of misdirected publicity. If advertising doesn't pay his client and he knows the reason, as no one should know it better, it isn't even good business policy for the advertising agent of any paper to let such a condition continue, because, if the advertiser finally proves to himself that his advertisement which has run in identically the same dress for ten or twenty years; that has had the type worn round until it has become illegible; that was never once changed except when the printing plant was destroyed by fire and the paper secured a second-hand outfit of type and reset its advertising matter in still more archaic job type than its first, it will follow that he will lose his business as he should lose it by neglecting the interests of all concerned.

An advertisement, large or small, should be the advertiser's spokesman. The more convincingly he can tell his story through the printed medium the more business he should be able to get. The oftener he talks about the same thing, always in a different way, or the oftener he brings his different leaders to the attention of his readers, the more he multiplies his chances of attracting attention if not to his special offers then to himself and his establishment. And to attract attention is the whole trick of advertising. The same is true of advertising through window display. Originality in laying out goods and industry in changing display are the required desiderata in making a window display effective as well as attractive. Without these, a window with drawn curtains would create more of a sensation than a lot of books, stationery, and miscellaneous articles would if they were left to lie in the window week in and week out without change. The larger stores recognize this, and do not hesitate to spend goodly sums for good window displays. The smaller merchant, who can less afford to neglect this form of advertising than his more prosperous rival, is apt to depreciate his opportunities in this direction and thereby suffers accordingly.

JUDGE HAND's decision in the Peary copyright case continues to attract the attention of the Bar, though it has dropped out of the public mind. It may again be emphasized that Judge Hand's decision is not a construction of the copyright law, but of the wording of the contract. The sole question is whether that letter can give the New York Times's authority to copyright in general. It is reiterated by Mr. Steuart, in an opinion which we reprint elsewhere, that the authority to copyright is a unitary and indivisible power, and, as we have already pointed out, it is after the copyrighting that the several rights may be divided. We are glad to note that so good an authority as Mr. Steuart, who was chairman of the committee representing the American Bar Association in the copyright conferences, holds with Judge Grosscup rather than with Judge Hand.

WE are now at work arranging the material for The Christmas Bookshelf, prepared each year by THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY to assist the bookseller in effectively calling the attention of his customers to his holiday stock. Publishers who have not already done so will consult their best interests in sending to this office advance information of their holiday announcements.

THE PEARY COPYRIGHT CASE.

OPINION OF ARTHUR STEUART, ESQ.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

SIR: In accordance with your request, I give you the substance of my opinion on Judge Hand's decision on the Peary copyright case, which seems to me wholly untenable, as prepared for use within my own firm.

This decision is based in great measure, first, upon a misunderstanding of the law, and, second, upon the decision of the Supreme Court in the case of Mifflin vs. White, 190 U. S. 261-262, in which the court says:

"Construing these two statutes together, it would seem that the word 'proprietor' in the fourth section must practically have the same meaning as 'legal assign' in the first section, and was designed to give to the legal assign of any author or authors the right to take out the copyright in his own name."

I am very sorry to see that Judge Hand has fallen into the error of dissolving the injunction in this case upon the mistaken theory that the New York Times did not obtain from Peary by his contract the right to copyright Peary's dispatches for their own benefit as news and for Peary's benefit for books and magazines. I think that error lies in a misconception of the copyright estate. Prior to publication Peary and his assignee—for the New York Times was undoubtedly his assignee, so far as the use of the dispatches for newspaper purposes was concerned—owned absolutely a common-law right of copyright upon the dispatches, and had a right to hold them and retain them from the public until such time as they chose to publish them. Upon publication they lost this common-law right and were, therefore, compelled to rely upon the statute to secure any monopoly in the composition.

Now, the statute provides that the copyright estate shall vest by publication with notice. The statute does not provide any method known to the law to divide the copyright estate except by contract. Copyright upon these dispatches for newspaper purposes could not be secured by one person and by another for book publication. The copyright estate is defined by the Supreme Court in Holmes vs. Hurst, 174 U. S. 89, as follows:

"It is the intellectual production of the author which the copyright protects and not the practical form which such production ultimately takes, and the word 'book' as used in the statute is not to be understood in its technical sense of a bound volume, but that series of publications which the author selects to embody his literary product. We are quite unable to appreciate the distinction between the publication of a book and the publication of the contents of such book, whether such contents be published piecemeal or en bloc."

There can be no possible doubt that Peary intended by his contract with the New York Times to assign to the New York Times the right to secure by copyright the exclusive privilege of publishing in the New York Times and such other newspapers as they might contract with his dispatches, and for that purpose necessarily he granted to them the right to do such acts in their own behalf as proprietor of the newspaper right, or in his behalf as proprietor of the book rights, as would secure the copyright estate. Now, the only possible way in which they could secure the copyright was by publication with notice, and I take it that in accordance with the case of Holmes vs. Hurst it mattered not whether that publication was in book form or in newspaper form. The copyright estate was unitary, indivisible, and secured once and for all by first publication with notice by a person who had legal authority to publish, and that person having acquired legal authority under the contract with Peary to publish thereby became the proprietor of the copyright so far as the rights assigned were concerned, holding the remaining rights in trust for Peary under the terms of the contract; and therefore I take it that there should have been no hesitation on the part of Judge Hand to have continued the injunction and to have held the New York Sun and the New York World responsible for the copying of the dispatches.

This conclusion does not in any way deal with the right of the New York Sun or any other newspaper to publish news, because news, as news, is not and cannot be made the subject of copyright, but the language in which the news is expressed—the literary composition—is and can be the subject of copyright, and is and can be secured and controlled by the copyrights which were taken out by the New York Times in their own behalf and on behalf of Peary for the various rights belonging to each of them under the contract.

Judge Grosscup in Chicago has not hesitated to grant the injunctions and to retain them, and he draws the distinction very clearly and sharply between news which is public property after the expiration of a few hours and literary matter, which is the description of news in the language of some particular author.

PROFITS ON HANDLING FICTION.

BY W. B. CLARKE.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

MAY I trespass on your space for some additional figures in reference to the alleged or supposed profit on the sale of fiction?

I have before me a record of 20 titles of fiction bought last September, the advertised retail price of which is $1.50.

I find that we bought as follows:

Bought.....	25	25	50	25	100	25	25	25	50	25	25
Sold.....	21	21	29	7	88	22	19	22	42	23	15
On hand.....	4	4	21	18	12	3	6	3	8	2	10

Bought.....	250	100	100	150	25	25	50	25	175	=1300
Sold.....	217	94	96	147	17	16	23	21	153	=1093
On hand....	33	6	4	3	8	9	27	4	22	=207

In order to make a fair estimate, I am assuming that I bought all these books at 81 c., although in point of fact some were bought at 86 c. and some at 90 c. The books which are on hand have been, or are being put upon my 50 c. counter, and if sold will show a loss of 31 c. per copy, or a total of $64.17, plus the expense of doing business.

I find that if the books which have been sold, if disposed of at $1.20 and cost 81 c., the gross profit would have been 39 c. The expense of selling, estimated at 25 per cent., would have been 30 c., or, in other words, a profit of 9 c. per volume on the 1093 volumes, and aggregating $98.37.

At $1.12, the ruling price here, the gross profit would have been 31 c. and the expense of doing business at 25 per cent. would have been 28 c., or 3 c. per copy margin, and for the total number of 1093 books sold would be $32.79, a profit equalling half the loss on the volumes sold at reduced rates, if they could have been sold without the ordinary expense of doing business. If they had been sold through the stores that persist in the $1.08 price, the margin of profit would have been 27 c., and the cost of doing business at 25 per cent. exactly 27 c., leaving a profit of nothing.

This is the way it looks:

$1.20	$1.12	$1.08
.81	.81	.81
.39	.31	.27
.30	.28	.27
.09 X 1093 = $98.37	.03 X 1093 = $32.79	.00 X 1093 = 0000

These figures I feel to be worthy of the most careful consideration of retailer and publisher. No account is taken of the books bought in that month at 90 c., or of the books bought at retail prices other than $1.50, with the corresponding possibility of profit or loss; neither has any account been taken of the fact that many of the copies sold went to public libraries or to our own lending library, or to other dealers. The only possibilities of profit seem to have been on the $1.20 basis and the $1.12 basis, provided no copies had been left over or sold at less than $1.20 or $1.12.

THE REVISING OF THE CATHOLIC BIBLE.

It is well known, says an editorial writer of the New York Sun, "that throughout Catholic Christendom since the time of Gregory the Great the authorized version of the Scriptures has been the Vulgate, or Latin translation of the Old and the New Testaments, originally made by St. Jerome near the close of the fourth century of our era. The edition of this version which is now sanctioned is the Clementine, published in 1593, after a revision had occupied forty years. It was hoped that a good deal of aid might be derived from this latest form of the Vulgate at the time when a revision of the King James version of the Scriptures, authorized to be used in the Church of England, was undertaken by English and American scholars. A disappointment, however, was experienced, as even the Clementine text of the Vulgate was found to be corrupt or untrustworthy.

"Taking cognizance of the imperfections of the Catholic Bible the present Pope determined to correct them. In May, 1907, he committed the task of revising the Vulgate to the Order of the Benedictines, and to that end a commission was appointed with Abbot Gasquet, president of the English Benedictines, at its head. The object of the commission, according to the Pope's definite instructions, is to ascertain and restore as far as possible the original text of St. Jerome's Latin translation. How far St. Jerome's translation itself represents the Hebrew or Greek originals is another question, which may be a subject for future criticism and another commission. For the moment the task is its accurate reproduction.

"The difficulties to be dealt with will be appreciated when we recall those which had to be surmounted even fifteen centuries ago. When Pope Damascus employed Jerome to revise the Latin Bible there was already a confusion of rival versions, conspicuous among which was the so-called "Itala." Jerome, however, had advantages which are not possessed to-day. He could compare dozens of ancient texts for one that is now in existence. Then, again, he had before him the "Hexaplar" of Origen, which represented not only the Septuagint in a state to which we can never hope to restore it, but the literal Greek translations of Aquila, Theodotion and Symmachus, of which we have only fragments. It is further to be noted that scarcely had Jerome's translation been completed than it began itself to fall into corruption, because it was received with scant favor by people accustomed to the old versions, especially in the liturgy, and at the most it was current side by side with the more familiar "Itala" until Gregory the Great intervened and ordered Jerome's translation to be generally used except in the Psalter. Nor was it until 1593 that an "authentic" version of the Vulgate was published by Clement VIII.

"There is no doubt that the revising of the Clementine text of the Vulgate is now being conducted on the most modern and scientific lines. An exhaustive investigation is making through all the libraries of Europe in the hope of finding hitherto unrecognized manuscript copies of the Vulgate. A special commission has been organized to examine the libraries and cathedral archives of Spain in search of fresh material. Spain is thought to offer a promising field for such discoveries, since, having been outside Charlemagne's authority, it was not subjected, as were other Catholic countries, to the influence of the Alcuin version, which elsewhere in the ninth century superseded all other versions of Jerome's translation. It is impossible to say what treasures may not still lie hidden in the churches and monasteries of Spain."

CANADIAN BOOKSELLER AND STATIONER'S SILVER JUBILEE.

The Bookseller and Stationer, of Toronto, with its September number, celebrates its silver jubilee, having evolved out of Books and Notions, started by I. J. Davis, of Toronto, during the month of August, 1884. Year by year the journal, taken over in 1888 by the MacLean Publishing Company, gained in strength, usefulness and influence until now, in its twenty-fifth year it may compare itself with the best book and stationery trade journals in America. This is due as much to the editorial management as to the enterprise of its publishers.

Since its establishment, Bookseller and Stationer has been in charge of several editors, and it is a fact worth noting that each one of these men has achieved distinction in the work he has since taken up. After the acquisition of the paper by the MacLean Publishing Company, the first editor was C. A. Jennings, who was in charge until the summer of 1892. Mr. Jennings is now one of the editors of the Toronto Mail and Empire. Following him for three years was John A. Cooper, who resigned in 1895 to accept the editorship of the Canadian Magazine and who is now the managing editor of the Canadian Courier. After him the paper was under the editorial control of Frank Smith, who is to-day on the editorial staff of the Toronto News. His successor was Dr. A. H. U. Colquhoun, new Deputy Minister of Education of the Province of Ontario. In 1902 the present editor, W. A. Craik, succeeded Dr. Colquhoun, and has ever since been in charge.

In the name of the booktrade of the United States, we offer congratulations coupled with the wish that our contemporary may enjoy many more years of usefulness and prosperity.

TRADE PRESS CONVENTION.

THE Federation of Trade Press Associations opened its fourth annual convention at the Hotel Astor on the afternoon of September 27. The members listened to a series of papers on trade journals and their relation to industries. Among those who spoke were John A. Hill, publisher of the American Machinist, the Engineering and Mining Journal and Power and the Engineer; J. Newton Nind, of the Furniture Journal and the Embalmer's Monthly; Charles G. Phillips, president of the Textile Publishing Company; Emerson P. Harris, of Advertising and Selling, and Robert I. Clegg, of Castings and Woodcraft.

The entire party was entertained at the Belasco Theatre at night. The regular business meeting on September 28 was followed by the annual banquet at the Astor. The speakers were Postmaster Morgan, Charles W. Moore and the Rev. Dr. N. M. Waters, of the Tompkins Avenue Congregational Church, Brooklyn.

BOOK ON SAN FRANCISCO.

THE Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition committee of San Francisco, composed of representatives of the San Francisco commercial organizations, has published a book on San Francisco which will be distributed to members of the organizations interested. The book is a neat volume, and a credit to the printers' and engravers' art, amply illustrated, showing the water front and harbor, fishing and trading fleets, water front industries, industrial enterprises, manufacturing centre, great business concerns, the California wine industry, banking and insurance houses, structures housing new enterprises, wholesale, jobbing and retail districts, the principal hotels, places of amusement, Government buildings, places of worship, educational institutions, scenes in Golden Gate Park, Mount Tamalpais, and other notable scenes in and about San Francisco. It also gives a record of San Francisco's great achievements since April, 1906.

MAP OF LONDON COSTS $80,000.

A GREAT map of the county of London, compiled by the county council surveyors, is on the eve of completion. Fifteen years have been spent upon it. From Stamford Hill on the north to lower Streatham on the south, and from Plumstead on the east to Putney on the west, it will indicate every house, shop and piece of property. When finished and laid out, with its sections in order, the map will be more than 30 feet wide and over 20 feet from top to bottom. But for convenience of handling it will be bound in books. When, in 1894, the project was first mooted it was thought that a sum of from £12,000 to £14,000 would be sufficient to pay for the work, but many minor difficulties have been met with, and by the time the map is finished it will have cost quite £16,000.

A NEW DOOMSDAY BOOK.

GREAT BRITAIN is to compile a new "Doomsday Book" at an estimated cost of $10,000,000. It will be a task of several years, and will duplicate the famous survey of the lands of England made by order of William the Conqueror.

The old "Doomsday Book" forms the oldest and most valuable record in the English national archives, and so accurate was it considered that during many centuries the authority of "Doomsday Book" was never permitted to be called in question. When it was necessary to distinguish whether lands were held in ancient demesne, or in any other manner, recourse was always had to "Doomsday," and to it only, in order to determine the doubt.

These volumes are kept in the museum of the Record Office. The first volume is a large folio, written on 382 double pages of vellum, each page having a double column. It contains the description of 30 counties, together with the anomalous districts of Rutland and the land "inter-Ripan et Mersham." The second volume is in quarto, written upon 450 double pages of vellum, but in a single column and in a large but very fair character. It contains the counties of Essex, Norfolk and Suffolk, and appears to consist of transcripts in full of the original returns for those counties, giving the details as to the live stock on each manor, which are generally omitted from the survey in its final form, as transcribed in the Exchequer. The ancient covers of the volumes are not contemporary with the ms., and the smaller book is known to have been found in 1320.

The compilation of the "Doomsday Book" was determined upon at Gloucester by William the Conqueror, in council, in order that he might know what was due to him in the way of taxes from his subjects, and that each, at the same time, might know what he had to pay. It was, in fact, compiled as much for the protection of the subject as for the benefit of the sovereign.

OBITUARY NOTES.

GEORGE L. MUELLER, the secretary and treasurer of the Jaques-Mueller Company, of Lafayette, Ind., and vice-president of the Ray M. Southworth Co., of West Lafayette, Ind., dealers in books, stationery, etc., died September 14 of typhoid fever.

NOTES AND QUERIES.

DANIEL BIXBY.—Can any of your readers tell me anything of a Daniel Bixby who published at Lowell (Mass.?) an edition of Goethe's "Correspondence with a Child," in the year 1841? Are there other books bearing Bixby's imprint? Any information will be gratefully received.

A. J. B.

[Between 1820 and 1852, Roobach gives the name of D. Bixby, New York, and that of D. Bixby and Co., Lowell. After 1852 both names disappeared. Can anyone throw light on their activity? Ed. P. W.]

COMMUNICATIONS.

THE SELLING PRICE OF "THE CALLING OF DAN MATTHEWS."

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: I notice that the Book Supply Co., of Chicago, have advertised their new book, "The Calling of Dan Matthews," in their new fall catalogue at $1.05. This is done in face of the fact that they have sold it to merchants all over the country who expect to sell it at $1.20 or more.

I think that the booksellers over the country should be advised of the fact that this catalog of the Book supply Co. is being sent to every bookbuyer in the West with the above-mentioned price in bold letters.

Yours truly,

A. S. MATHIS.

PUBLISHING HOUSE, METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH,
SOUTH, DALLAS, TEXAS, September 10, 1909.

REPLY BY THE BOOK SUPPLY CO.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: We acknowledge receipt of your letter of the 21st, enclosing copy of letter from the Publishing House of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

In reply we desire to state that there has been absolutely no change in our prices or policy of doing business since our establishment in 1895. Every progressive bookseller in the country knows that our postpaid price for "The Calling of Dan Matthews" is $1.17, the same as on other new $1.50 novels, except in one or two cases where the publishers insist on our making a postpaid price of $1.08. (We suppose they think a lower price gives them an advantage over other publishers.)

You will observe that a net price of $1.17 on a $1.50 book is 9 cents more than the bottom retail price authorized by a 28 per cent. discount.

Every progressive bookseller also knows that our business is done outside of Chicago and other large cities.

"And because the town of this story is what it is, there came to dwell in it a Spirit—a strange, mysterious power—playful, vicious, deadly; a Something to be at once feared and courted; to be denied—yet confessed in the denial; a dreaded enemy, a welcome friend, an all-powerful Ally."—From "The Calling of Dan Matthews."

Without making further comment, we leave the reader to draw his own conclusions from the above quotation.

Yours truly,

THE BOOK SUPPLY COMPANY,

E. W. REYNOLDS, President.

CHICAGO, September 23, 1909.

PRICE OF WEBSTER'S DICTIONARIES.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: The American Booksellers' Association, assisted by the publishers of this country, are endeavoring to advance the interest of all connected with the booktrade by fixing the discount on books that will insure at least a living to the booksellers.

The last two or three years have seen many changes for the better, and in the course of time, allowing for the adjustment essential to an important move like this, it is hoped that booksellers not only will continue, but new booksellers will be established in this land in which the population is increasing so rapidly.

The publishers of Webster's "International Dictionary" have announced a new edition which will be published soon, and I believe the booksellers will agree with me in stating that there is no profit in handling this publication. I refer to Mr. Carey's article which appeared in one of the May numbers of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY this year to corroborate this statement. In conversation with one of the representatives of the Merriam Co. at the American Booksellers' convention in May, he told me that the price for the Webster dictionaries was made by the retailers of this country. When I inquired when this occurred, he stated "many years ago." I then asked, "How many years ago?" and his answer was—"in 1891." I then said, "Don't you think it is time that there was some change made, as in eighteen years the cost of living and doing business have grown rapidly?" The statistics gathered from the Labor Bureau at Washington show that in eleven years foodstuffs have advanced 40 per cent."

In my judgment the time is ripe for the booksellers of the country to write a friendly letter to The Merriam Company and have them agree upon some price whereby the booksellers can get their money back if they don't make a profit, because the statement is fair that you cannot conduct the average retail business on an advance of from five to ten per cent. beyond the cost of goods.

Yours respectfully,

H. H. JACKSON.

BRIDGEPORT, CONN., Sept. 24, 1909.

BUSINESS NOTES.

DALLAS, TEX.—The stock, furniture and fixtures of the American Baptist Publication Society were destroyed by fire during the night of September 15. Publishers are requested to mail catalogues of their new publications addressed to American Baptist Publication Society, P. O. Box 971.

HARTFORD, CONN.—Mrs. Helen R. Marvin, who has been in charge of the circulating library of the Edward P. Judd Company, of New Haven, Conn., since its establishment three years ago, is to open in October a similar library on her own account in the Stearns Building in Hartford. The success of the enterprise seems assured. Mrs. Marvin's paper on circulating libraries read at the 1909 convention of the American Booksellers' Association was one of the features of that most successful meeting.

NEW YORK CITY.—Schedules in bankruptcy of the Globe Publishing Company, subscription book publishers, of 44 East Twenty-third Street, filed by James A. Hill, President, according to the New York Times, show liabilities of $378,593, of which $288,555 are secured by book leases and indorsements of Mr. Hill of J. H. Hill & Co., and nominal assets of $600,356, consisting of stock at Akron, Ohio, $45,345; book plates at Akron, $265,000; accounts, $262,511, and equities in pledged book leases, $27,500. Among the creditors are the Werner Company, of Akron, $200,000, secured by plates and book leases; Avil Publishing Company, Philadelphia, $13,784; Aldine Manufacturing Company, Paterson, N. J., $10,000; University Society, New York, $7328; First National Bank of Florence, Ala., $8000, secured; Franklin Trust Company, Philadelphia, $6986, secured; Cosmopolitan Bank, $5647, secured; Juniata Valley National Bank, of Mifflintown, Pa., $5438, secured; Seacoast National Bank, of Asbury Park, $3793, secured; Farmers' Savings Bank of Walcott, Iowa, $3652, secured; H. B. Humphrey Company, Boston, $3621; A. L. Cary, $3531; Third National Bank of Syracuse, $3464, secured, State Bank of Syracuse, $3250, secured; First National Bank of Harrington, Del., $3233, secured; Selbyville National Bank of Delaware, $3134, secured; and Bronx Borough Bank of New York, $3050 secured.

NEW YORK CITY.—Frank McHale, known through his connection with Leggat Brothers, McHale & Rhode, the Scientific Publishing Co., the Mining and Engineering Magazine, and, more recently, with the Hill Publishing Company, has established himself in the Havemeyer Building at Cortlandt, Church and Dey Streets, to deal in technical books. Mr. McHale is a recognized authority in this line and should succeed in building up a fine business. In this effort he will have the good wishes of all his many friends.

SOMERVILLE, N. J.—John B. Alden, for so many years connected with the booktrade in New York, is organizing The Farmers' Republic, with headquarters here. He explains it, in part, as follows: "While its plans for farm and farmer betterment are in some measure similar to the 'Granger' and 'Alliance' movements, it is radically different from all of them in that it deals with the land as a fundamental basis. The supplying of farm-capital, farm and home supplies, the marketing of farm products and dealing with matters educational and social are incidental features."

TEMPLE, TEX.—Olin Graves, of Belton, has purchased the book and stationery stock of B. F. Looney, who recently made a voluntary assignment. Mr. Graves will re-open Looney's store and continue the business.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

JOHN W. LUCE & Co. will publish shortly Milton Bronner's critical study of Maurice Hewlett. Mr. Bronner will be remembered as the author of a careful, critical biographical sketch of Lafcadio Hearn.

C. F. LIEBECK, the dealer in old books at 442 East Sixty-seventh Street, Chicago, recently purchased the library of the late Thomas Diller, of Sterling, Ill., comprising about 3000 volumes, chiefly Americana.

"SIMON THE JESTER" is the title of the new novel which William J. Locke, author of "The Morals of Marcus Ordeyne," has lately completed. It is to run as a serial in The American Magazine, beginning in the November number.

JEROME H. REMICK & Co., 131 West Forty-first Street, New York, call attention to a novel entitled "Nachette," by Robert A. Wason, author of "Happy Hawkins" and "Ned Nye," a book which, the publishers claim, will make the reader "sit up and think."

FREDERICK A. STOKES COMPANY have just ready a new book by Bettina von Hutten, the author of "Pam," entitled "Beechy, or, the Lordship of Love." The chief character of the book is a grand opera singer of delightful personality, whose wonderful career is told in a way to beguile the most blasé novel reader.

THE library of Simon Newcomb, the astronomer, who died in Washington last summer, has been presented to the College of the City of New York by John Claffin, who purchased it from the estate for about $10,000. The library consists of 6000 volumes and 3000 pamphlets on scientific subjects, some of which are very rare.

B. W. DODGE & Co. will bring out shortly "Bible Rimes for the Not-too Young," by Clare Kummer, the author of "Dearie," and Oliver Herford. For the unsophisticated it may be well to explain that the publishers announce that "the verses and pictures are at once a parody and a satire on certain striking events of man's earlier history—in short, humor with a tang."

DODD, MEAD & Co. will publish at once a novel entitled "Where Snow is Sovereign," a romance of the glaciers, by Rudolph Stratz, translated from the German by Mary J. Saford, in which the dazzling glaciers, the vast spaces, the grim and towering peaks, the fury of the Alpine storms and the perils of mountain climbing are drawn with a vivid, sure and masterly touch.

THE business of The Outing Magazine is being reorganized under the title of Outing Publishing Company with offices at 315 Fifth Avenue, New York City. Several new books of an out-door nature are announced for publication this fall, among which are the following: "A Guide to the Country Home," by Edward Kneeland Parkinson; also, "Tracks and Tracking," by Josef Brunner.

BOBBS-MERRILL Co. will publish on October 9 "The Game and the Candle," by Eleanor M. Ingram, described as "a book of golden deeds, of love that keeps faith through trial and of allegiance steadfast in the midst of fiery adventure; "Miss Selina Sue and the Soap-Box Babies," by Maria Thompson Daviess, a delightfully funny story for old and young; also, "Virginia of the Air Lanes," by Herbert Quick, an exciting airship novel.

E. P. DUTTON & Co announce the following additions to Everyman's Library: "The Count of Monte Cristo," by Dumas, in two volumes; "The Life of William Carey, Shoemaker and Missionary," by George Smith; "The Bayard of India" (Sir James Outram); Prescott's "Conquest of Mexico," in two volumes; and Macaulay's "Speeches on Politics and Literature," with an introduction by the late W. E. Gladstone.

HOUGHTON MIFFLIN Co. will publish on October 9 Kate Douglas Wiggin's new Shaker story, "Susanna and Sue," in beautifully illustrated holiday form; Dr. George Hodge's stories from the Old Testament, entitled "The Garden of Eden;" Dr. George A. Gordon's new book, "Religion and Miracle;" "Lincoln, the Leader, and Other Papers," by Richard Watson Gilder; also, "When Sarah Saved the Day," a story for girls by Miss Elsie Singmaster.

JOHN LANE COMPANY publish this week, (October 1,) a new book by Netta Syrett. This is a novel entitled "Anne Page," a romance of a woman who took her life in her own hands, molded it to suit herself and let conventions take care of themselves. They have also just ready in the New Library of Music, edited by Ernest Newman, a volume on "Handel," by R. A. Streatfield, with twelve illustrations.

SUPREME COURT JUSTICE PLATZEK, in New York, on September 29 signed an order of discontinuance of the action brought by the Romance Press against Eugene Walter, the playwright, and David Belasco. Suit was begun in April by the Romance Press as the publishers of a novel written by George Elliott Flint, entitled "The Short Cut." It was asserted by Mr. Flint that the theme of Mr. Walter's play, "The Easiest Way," was taken from his novel. The claims made by Mr. Flint were denied by Mr. Walter and Mr. Belasco.

BRENTANO'S will publish this fall a volume entitled "The Court of Louis XIII.," by K. A. Patmore, based on a large number of contemporary memoirs and records, giving an account of the royal family of France in the earlier half of the seventeenth century. The domestic habits of royalty are described in detail, while such matters as the curious domestic relations of Louis XIII. and his wife, Anne of Austria, come in for special treatment. The volume is illustrated.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have just issued "The Last King of Poland and His Contemporaries," by R. Nisbet Bain, who has well pictured the career of this king whose dazzling vices and barren virtues were so typical of the age in which he lived, this reformer who meant excellently well yet invariably sacrificed honor to expediency. The author gives a most enlightening view of the times of Stanislaus Poniatows-Ki. The house also has a volume of "Tales of Edgar Allan Poe," with illustrations by Frederick Simpson Coburn.

THOMAS Y. CROWELL & Co. have just published "The Journal of a Recluse," an anonymous book, translated from the original French. It is an intensely vital, self-revealing document—one in which the writer, like Rousseau or Amiel, seeks to tell the whole truth about himself, sparing nothing, condoning nothing. In an easy, smooth-flowing style, and through the medium of a story which at times grows highly dramatic, the man lays bare the secrets of his soul. "The whole man in his simplicity and earnestness appears in this book," says the translator.

THE REILLY & BRITTON Co. will publish on October 9 a stirring novel of the open, by Oliver Marble Gale and Harriet Wheeler, entitled "A Knight of the Wilderness." The story deals with the bigness, the freshness, the vigor and the spiritual and physical courage of that early period of the United States, when the middle West was the common meeting-ground of the first white settlers and the Indian warriors of Black Hawk. Some historic characters figure in the book, among them Abraham Lincoln and Jefferson Davis. The book has been illustrated in color by Ivin Ney.

FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY have just ready "Snap Shots from Sunny Africa," by Helen E. Springer, a collection of vivid pen pictures of incidents and events in daily life in Africa; "Liberty of Conscience Under Three Tsars," by Robert S. Latimer, which as an examination of the notorious attitude of the Russian Government toward freedom of thought is a severe indictment of that nation's mediæval spirit in matters of freedom; also, "Between the Testaments," by Dr. C. M. Grant, which covers that neglected period between the Old Testament and the New, estimated at four centuries.

HARPER & BROTHERS will publish at once a new book by Henry James, entitled "Julia Bride," the heroine of which is a type of perfect physical beauty, who has been engaged six times and whose mother has had three husbands, which the publishers' advertising agent seems to think is "the New York idea" upon which Mr. James's story is said to be "a fine comment;" "The Redemption of Kenneth Galt," a story of life in rural Georgia by Will N. Harben; also, a book for young people in Harper's Athletic Series, entitled "On the Gridiron, and other stories of outdoor sport," by Jesse Lynch Williams, W. J. Henderson and others.

DUFFIELD & Co. have just published a novel entitled "Treasure Trove," by C. A. Dawson-Scott, the plot of which hinges upon the search by a burglar for a package of valuable jewels which he lost while robbing a house; "The Black Sheep," by Joseph Sharts, author of "Ezra Caine," the scene of which is laid in a town in Ohio called Beulah, and the hero of which is a Harvard man, who is really not at all a black sheep; "On the Lightship," by Herman Knickerbocker Viele, author of "The Inn of the Silver Moon," etc., a collection of the late Mr. Viele's short stories, for which Thomas A. Janvier has written an introduction.

FUNK & WAGNALLS COMPANY will publish shortly "The Problems of Youth," by Louis Albert Banks, D.D., and "The Doors of Life, or, Little Studies in Self-Healing," by Walter De Voe. The first of these consists of thirty "character-building talks," delivered at different times, on themes from the Book of Proverbs to congregations of young men and women, by Dr. Banks. In "The Doors of Life," which is commended by a reader for "its earnest devotional style," the author writes from the basis of a belief that "there lies within each person the faculties through which that person may develop the power of God within himself."

T. & A. CONSTABLE & Co., London, will begin next November the publication of a Memorial edition of the work of George Meredith in about twenty-six volumes, sold in sets only. The edition will be printed from new type on a specially manufactured paper. About fifty or sixty illustrations will be included. One volume will comprise the novel "Celt and Saxon," which Meredith left unfinished. Other unpublished matter will appear, including an incomplete romance and a comedy. The changes, alterations, and additions made by the author in the various editions of his works, and a bibliography will appear in a final volume.

LOTHROP, LEE & SHEPARD have four excellent books for boys in Stratemeyer's "The Football Boys of Lakeport," the fourth volume of the Lakeport Series; "The School Four," by A. T. Dudley, the first volume of Stories of the Triangular League, telling of the adventures of four boys who lead in athletic sports; "For the Stars and Stripes," by Everett T. Tomlinson, the first volume of War for the Union Series, based on true happenings during the war between the states; also, "Winning His Shoulder Straps," by Norman Brainerd, the initial volume of Five Chums Series, a rousing good story of life in a military school. Each story is adequately illustrated.

BOTH TARKINGTON, according to the Pittsburgh correspondent of the New York Tribune, has declared that he had written his last novel, which is an assertion considered treasonable, coming from a native of Indiana. "I never wanted to be a writer," said Mr. Tarkington, "and unless I am absolutely forced to do so I have written my last book. My ambition in life was to become an illustrator, and I once thought I was in a fair way to reach my goal. I have but one ambition—to make money enough, to get out of this playwright mess and purchase a nice farm in Indiana where I may lead the life of a country gentleman, with just enough to keep me from want—nothing more."

WILLIAM ABBATT is publishing, in connection with The Magazine of History with Notes and Queries, a series of reprints, with notes, of some of the rarest items of Americana known to bibliographers. Among them are: Thomas Brown's "Plain Narrativ" [of Indian captivity, Boston, 1760;] the Rev. Benjamin Doolittle's "Short Narrative of Mischiefs done by the French and Indian Enemy," etc., Boston, 1750; and John Clarke's "Impartial and Authentic Narrative of the Battle Fought on the 17th of June," [Bunker Hill,] London, 1775. Of the first of the three only one perfect copy is known; of the second but two, while the third is priced by a London dealer at £31.

The first treatment of Indian Music as a whole will be published in the near future by Moffat, Yard & Company. The title is "American Primitive Music" and the author is Frederick R. Burton, ethnologist and composer, who spent years among the Indians transcribing and studying their music, and who is widely known as a lecturer on the subject here and in England. The work is one of first importance likely to remain the authority for many years. Mr. Burton illustrates his points by including in the volume, as a part of it, twenty-eight characteristic and often very beautiful Ojibway songs with English translations of the words and pianoforte accompaniments.

THE DODGE PUBLISHING COMPANY, New York, have just brought out a very attractive series of books for the young under the collective title of Stories Told Through the Ages. There are six volumes in the series, comprising stories selected from the Old Testament, the Greek tragedies, the Iliad and the Odyssey, from the Æneid and from Don Quixote. Much care and skill have been devoted to the spirit and atmosphere of the classic originals, while shortening and simplifying the stories for the comprehension of youthful readers. Each book is fully illustrated with half-tone reproductions of famous paintings, representing striking scenes and characters of the stories selected.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have just ready a volume entitled "The Gateway to the Sahara," a record of observations and experiences in Tripoli, by Charles W. Furlong, with illustrations in color and in black and white; "Roses," four extraordinary plays of life of to-day, by Hermann Sudermann; "Sixty Years with the Bible," by Dr. William Newton Clarke, who tells the story of his own life in the single character of a student, lover and user of the Bible, exhibiting the mental processes through which the change from the old to the new attitude toward the Bible has come to pass; "Forty Minutes Late," a collection of stories, by F. Hopkinson Smith, of adventures at sea, stories of artists and their ways, etc.; also, "The Story of Rustem and Other Persian Hero Tales from Firdusi," told for the younger readers by Elizabeth D. Renninger, with twelve illustrations in color by J. L. S. Williams.

In the explanatory introductions which Mrs. Humphry Ward is writing for the complete edition of her works published by Houghton Mifflin Co., she does not hesitate to admit that certain of her characters are drawn from real life, but she insists upon a proper understanding of the exact sense in which this is true. Because the "Miss Bretherton" of her first novel was suggested by the career of Mary Anderson it does not follow that all that is said of the former is true of the latter. There is a vast difference between the suggestion and the portrait. Mrs. Ward's novels contain no portraits and no history, but they abound in characters suggested by people whom she has known, in incidents and reminiscences of real life, in vivid word-pictures of scenes which she has learned to love or of places with which she has been personally familiar. The scenery of "Robert Elsmere," for instance, combines Westmoreland, which Mrs. Ward knew in her childhood, with the Oxford of her girlhood and early married life, and the Surrey where many pleasant summers were spent.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co have just ready a new book by the author of "Pigs Is Pigs," Ellis Parker Butler, entitled "The Thin Santa Claus." As the title suggests, the story, not over-burdened with tragic atmosphere, is not inappropriate to the Christmas season. Another novel just ready is by Mary Stewart Cutting, author of "The Wayfarers," called "Just for Two." The volume contains five stories of love and courtship, characterized by those qualities that have become familiar to the readers of this author's works of fiction. There is also a volume, bearing the title "Upbuilders," by Lincoln Steffens, in which are given "five true stories of five different ways in which five different men have fought for the rest of us in five widely separated parts of the United States." The subjects of these stories are Mark Fagan, Everett Colby, Judge Lindsey, W. R. Hearst and Rudolph Spreckels. In the Children's Crimson Classics Series is published the volume entitled "Tales of Wonder," an announcement of which was made some time ago, by Kate Douglas Wiggin and Nora Archibald Smith.

STURGIS & WALTON, New York, have just brought out "Doctor Rast," by James Oppenheim, and "An American Princess," by Meyram Hill. The first of these is the story of the experiences of a young doctor whose professional labors are among the people of New York's east side. "An American Princess" is a story of adventure, the plot of which centres about Polly Worthington, an American girl, and her remarkable resemblance to Princess Verta of Monrovia. Three other books also just ready are "Stories from Old Chronicles," chosen and edited, with a brief introduction and foreword, by Kate Stephens; Ben Jonson's "English Grammar," edited with an introduction and notes by Alice V. Waite, Associate Professor of English at Wellesley College; "French Verbs and Verbal Idioms in Speech," by Baptiste and E. Jules Meras; also, a brief guide for amateur students of astronomy, entitled "Star-Gazer's Handbook," by Henry W. Elson, author of "Side Lights on American History," etc., which contains besides the practical hints to the amateur the mythological stories of the Greek gods and heroes, from whom the heavenly bodies were named.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY have just brought out in their Romance Series two volumes, one dealing with the "Romance of Modern Chemistry," by James C. Child, and the "Romance of Modern Manufacture," by Charles R. Gibson. For juvenile readers they have provided an illustrated holiday edition of George Macdonald's fairy story, "At the Back of the North Wind," a classic in its way, and two useful manuals by C. Lang Neil—"Modern Card Manipulation" and "After Dinner Sleights and Pocket Tricks," both lucidly written and fully illustrated. Besides these they have a work on "Dutch Art in the Nineteenth Century," an exhaustive and copiously illustrated manual by G. H. Marius, translated by A. Teixeira De Matos. Their publications for the present week include three new novels by popular authors—"The Clue," a detective story by Carolyn Wells; "Bronson of the Rabble," a romance of old Philadelphia, by Albert E. Hancck, and "The Isle of Dead Ships," a tale of the Sargasso Sea, by Crittenden Marriott, the well-known magazine writer. A timely book of popular scientific nature is "Aerial Navigation of To-day," by Charles C. Turner. Besides these there are also just ready "Sailing Ships and Their Story," by E. Keble Chatterton; "The Exile of St. Helena," by Philippe Gonnard; and "Botany of To-day," by G. F. Scott-Elliot.

THE CENTURY COMPANY will publish shortly a novel by Albert Hickman, author of "Overproof," "Oriented," etc., entitled "An Unofficial Love Story." A new book of short stories by Ruth McEnery Stuart, containing "Aunt Amity's Silver Wedding," "Thanksgiving on Crawfish Bayou," "Petit Larceny," and "The Hair of the Dog," is also announced. The volume will contain pictures by Frederic Dorr Steele, A. B. Frost and others, and will bear the title of the first story, "Aunt Amity's Silver Wedding." They will bring out this month a new story by the author of "The Lady of the Decoration," entitled "Little Sister Snow." Mrs. Fannie C. Macauley, who wrote "The Lady of the Decoration," under the pen-name of "Frances Little," is a near relative of Mrs. Alice Hegan Rice, the author of "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch." It is said that Mrs. Rice is the "mate" to whom the letters in "The Lady of the Decoration" were written. Six of the Century Company's fall juvenile publications will be book issues of serial features which have proved their worth by St. Nicholas publication this last year—Ralph Henry Barbour's "Captain Chub," Helen Nicolay's "The Boys' Life of Ulysses S. Grant," W. W. Denslow's "When I Grow Up," Agnes McClelland Daulton's "From Sioux to Susan," Bradley Gilman's "A Son of the Desert," and Mary Constance Du Bois's "The Lass of the Silver Sword."

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY have just ready week Jack London's new novel, "Martin Eden," the scene of which is laid almost entirely in San Francisco. There is much in its development, the portrayal of its hero, a sailor by training, the pictures of social conditions, etc., to give rise to the notion that it is somewhat autobiographic in character. They have also just ready one of the last two posthumous stories from the pen of the late Marion Crawford, "Stradella." It is a historical romance of the Italy of the seventeenth century, centring around the love of the great musician Stradella for the daughter of a Venetian nobleman. Other books published this week are two new volumes in the Bible for Home and School Series, entitled "St. Paul's Epistle to the Galatians," edited by Professor B. W. Bacon, and "Genesis," edited by Hinkley G. Mitchell; and two educational books—"Outlines of Chemistry," by Professor Louis Kahlenberg, of the University of Wisconsin, and "Representative Biographies," by Messrs. Copeland and Hersey of Harvard; "The Wayfarer in New York," an anthology of the many things that have been said in prose and verse about the city of New York, compiled by an anonymous hand and furnished with an introduction by Edward S. Martin; also, William Vaughn Moody's successful play, "The Great Divide," in book form. Among the publications making ready rapidly are "The Promise of American Life," by Herbert Croly, a profound study of the nature, history and future of American democracy, which incidentally contains a remarkable analysis of four such diverse men as Jerome, Hearst, Bryan and Roosevelt; a completely revised and modernized edition of Carl Plehn's "Introduction to Public Finance," and two new novels—"A Gentle Knight of Old Brandenburg," by Charles Major, with scene laid at the court of Berlin in the time of the father of Frederick the Great; and "Other People's Houses," by E. B. Dewing, a cosmopolitan story of modern society, with scene shifting from America to the Mediterranean and Paris and back again to home soil.

PICK-UPS.

MEASURING THE LENGTH OF A BOOK.—Carolyn Wells has a refreshing rule for measuring the proper length of a book when she writes it herself. One of Miss Wells's publishers—she is so versatile that she has several—said to her recently, with intense curiosity: "Why do you always send us your book mss. in a five-pound candy box?" Miss Wells met this question candidly. "Oh," she said, "you see, when I feel that I'm going to write a book I always buy a five-pound box of candy and a pint of ink. Then I begin to write. And when the candy is all gone, and the ink is all used up, I know that the book is long enough."

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers, under their own names, are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print of five nonpareil lines, exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, or those advertising anonymously, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line. All objectionable books will be excluded so far as they come under our notice.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No reduction for repeated matter.

All other small undisplayed advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no account must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their Communications.

WAGNER'S HEROES

By CONSTANCE MAUD

Profusely Illustrated in Black and White and Colors. Cloth, Octavo, Artistically Stamped in Colors. Price, 50 cents.

These stories are for our young folks and not written for Wagnerites or any other learned persons.

These are just simple tales about men and women who once really lived on the earth and about whom the greatest poet-musician wrote in that wonderful music-language of his which speaks straight to the heart.

McLOUGHLIN BROTHERS, Publishers

that you allow your stock of the Rand, McNally Pocket Maps to be "short" a single state.

Your map case is one of the most profitable features of your store if you keep your stock complete. Did you ever stop to think that every time your clerks say "we haven't in stock" a given state map, you lose 12½ cents profit? Bear this fact in mind and don't be "short" again. Order direct from us, or through your jobber.

If you do not have a suitable map display case, write us for our special offer on three different styles of shelf and counter cases.

The Rand, McNally map publications include maps of every state and country in the world. Catalogue free on request.

Bibliographical Helps

ISSUED FROM

THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY OFFICE

The Publishers' Weekly

Recognized as the representative of the publishing and bookselling interests in the United States. Contains full weekly record of American publications, with monthly indexes, cumulated quarterly, news of interest concerning the book trade, lists of "Books Wanted," (an advertising feature which each subscriber can use without charge to the extent of 100 lines per year,) etc., etc. Subscription, $4.00 a year; to foreign countries, $5.00 a year.

The Annual American Catalog, 1908

In two parts: A short-title index to all the book publications of the year and a full-title index, with brief annotation of the leading books of 1908. 8vo, cloth, $3.00.

The American Catalog, 1905-1907

Vol. I containing in one alphabet an index to all books published during 1905-06-07; under author, title, subject and series entries. 8vo, half morocco, $7.50.

Vol. II containing the full-title Weekly Record material of The Publishers' Weekly for the same years, in a separate alphabet for each year. 8vo, half morocco, $6.00.

The American Catalog, 1900-1905

Vol. I contains a five-year cumulation, Jan. 1, 1900-Jan. 1, 1905, giving in one alphabet, by author, title and subject, information of the books issued during the years covered by this period. It also contains a directory of over 3800 publishers, with street addresses. 8vo, half morocco, $7.50.

Vol. II or Supplementary volume gives the full-title entries with annotations printed in the Weekly Record of The Publishers' Weekly, cumulated into an alphabet for each year, i.e., into five alphabets 1900, 01, 02, 03, 04. This is planned to answer the demand of such libraries, bookdealers, and others as want the full material of The Publishers' Weekly bibliographical system in available shape. 8vo, half morocco, $7.50. The set of two, $15.

Of the previous series of THE AMERICAN CATALOGUE, quarto size, the earlier volumes are out of print. We have remaining a few copies of the volumes 1890-95 and 1895-1900, bound in half morocco, $15.00 each.

The Publishers' Trade List Annual

Contains the latest catalogues of upward of 200 American publishers, contributed by themselves and arranged alphabetically by the firm-names, with smaller lists, fully indexed, in the front of the volume, indispensable to every one who has any interest in the sale or purchase of books. Large 8vo, cloth, $2.00.

Index to the Publishers' Trade List Annual, 1902, out of print.

The Supplementary Index, 1903-1904, 500 pages, 8vo, cloth, with thumb index, $3.00. The alphabet in this volume is supplementary to the original Index of 1902.

The Library Journal

Chiefly devoted to library economy and bibliography. Established in 1876. Published monthly. Subscription $4.00 a year, postpaid; single numbers, 35 cents. Price to Europe or other countries in the Union, 16s. a year; single numbers, 18, 6d.

The Annual Library Index

Including Periodicals, American and English; Essays, Book-Chapters, etc., Bibliographies, Necrology, Index to Dates of Principal Events, and a Select List of Public Libraries in the U. S. and Canada. Edited, with the co-operation of members of the American Library Association and of The Library Journal staff, by W. I. FLETCHER. (Published annually.) The volume covering 1908, $5.00; all prior volumes, $3.50 each.

The American Educational List

Contains a price-list of the text-books in use in the United States, arranged alphabetically by author's or editor's name, and a detailed subject-index, referring from each specific subject to authors of books on that subject. (Published annually.) 8vo, leatherette, 50 cents.

English Catalogue of Books (Annual)

Containing a complete list of all the books published in Great Britain and Ireland in the calendar year, with index to subjects. 8vo, cloth, $1.50.

Directory of Publishers

Contains names and addresses of 3789 firms and individuals who issued books in the U. S. from Jan. 1, 1905, to Dec. 31, 1907. (Reprinted from The American Catalog.) 8vo, leatherette, red edges, $1.00.

The Profession of Bookselling

A handbook of practical hints for the apprentice and bookseller. By A. GROWELL, managing editor of The Publishers' Weekly, author of "A Bookseller's Library," "Three Centuries of English-Booktrade Bibliography," etc. Parts 1 and 2. 8vo, boards, each $2.00. (Concluding part in preparation.)

Publications of Societies

A provisional list of the publications of American scientific, literary and other societies, from their organization. Compiled under the editorial direction of R. R. BOWKER. Schedules nearly 1000 societies issuing publications, and gives title-entries of all their publications, as far as data could be obtained from the societies and from libraries. 8vo, paper, $2.50.

State Publications

A provisional list of the official publications of the several States of the United States from their organization. Compiled under the editorial direction of R. R. BOWKER. Part 1: New England States. Part 2: North Central States. Part 3: Western States and Territories. Part 4: Southern States. The four parts bound in one vol., half morocco, $12.00; the four parts, each in paper cover, $10.00 for the set. (Not sold separately.)
